
Just Governance for Human Security

Exploring our part in the Global Goals

04 July – 09 July 2018

DAILY PROGRAMME

Caux Palace Conference and Seminar Centre

Introduction

For over 70 years, the Caux Conferences, now known as the Caux Forum have dealt with the challenges facing the global community and human security has always been high on the agenda. Human Security has been described by former United Nations Secretary General Kofi Annan as “Freedom from want, freedom from fear and the freedom of future generations to inherit a healthy natural environment”. The global rise of instability of all kinds puts these elements of human security at risk. Pillars of stability depend on decisions made by those in power, but they also depend on each and every one of us.

Progress towards human security is often blocked by entrenched attitudes and difficult relationships which lack dialogue and trust. The forum is concerned, therefore, with enabling both leaders and citizens to work effectively towards an inclusive, democratic approach while seeking inspiration to make fresh steps towards trust-building. Some participants come from countries under authoritarian rule, others from emerging or established democracies. At Caux everyone has the opportunity to share their own experience without judgment, learn from others, and to work together to advance human security by connecting and discussing the best ways to deal with conflict, division, counter-extremism and other challenges. Everyone has a voice in creating stable pillars for their society.

The United Nations Sustainable Development Goals are a global call to action for all citizens to rise up and play their personal role in tackling the social and economic issues that threaten the future of communities around the world. Just Governance for Human Security 2018 will focus in particular on the connection between the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals and the Six Pillars of Human Security.

Six Pillars of Human Security

Threats to human security jeopardize society's foundation. The Six Pillars of Human Security: good governance, food security, inclusive economics, social inclusion, sustainability and healing memory bring together members of society to be active in the struggle against threats to peace and stability.

Plenary Sessions

With an emphasis on conversation and discussion rather than speeches, we hope to encourage dialogue throughout the forum, particularly during the morning plenary sessions. Panellists will open the conversation with short statements, and then participants will be invited to join the discussion in a question and answer format.

Our unique, interactive method

This forum brings together people working to advance just governance and human security in their situation. Every participant brings valuable knowledge and insights to the table. Through a combination of interactive sessions: plenaries, participatory peace-building sessions, training and space to reflect, we explore approaches which can help answer personal, national and international challenges.

humansecurityX

humansecurityX is a parallel certificate training course. The objective of the course is to provide a structured, in-depth approach to understand human security threats around the world specifically related to the Six Pillars of Human Security, alongside the full programme. Course certificates of completion will be awarded on 9 July at 14:45. If you have not yet signed up for this course and would like to, please see a Forum Organizer or proceed directly to the welcome desk and the team will happily arrange this for you. There is no additional cost. This will provide participants with a roadmap to maximize their understanding of human security.

Peace-builders in Action

Hear the inspiring story of courageous peacemakers from around the world. All participants have amazing stories to tell; yet time restraints prohibit the ability to hear everyone's story. 'Peace-builders in Action' will inspire you with a unique story of courage at the start of each morning's plenary session.

Human Library

An evening program highlight consisting of five renowned individuals invited to play the role of a living book. The living books share the story of their work, their life story or their passion project with forum participants. This interactive session is also an opportunity to exchange with the people who are creating a path to change and peace.

Building a Global Community

Everyone is invited to join community groups of between 12 and 20 people. If you haven't signed up to a community group at the welcome desk, please see one of the Forum Organizers, who will happily arrange it for you.

Space for Morning Reflection

Participants are invited to take part in a morning reflection starting promptly at 7.15am in the Bay Window of the Main Hall. The presenter will speak in either English or French. Interpretation will not be available through the headphones. If you need help, please sit with someone who can give a whispered interpretation. For many people a daily time of reflection is an essential source of wisdom and direction. In this pre-breakfast session, the facilitator will speak briefly, and then there will be a time of silence. This session recognizes that wise action stems not only from our capacity for analysis, but also from our search for what is right, not who is right.

Global Goals Advocacy Session – SDG Advocacy: Your Ideas in Action

As the facilitator writes:

“Uncertainty, isolationism, multiple crisis, nationalisms, racism, xenophobia etc. are pushing for innovative channels to advocate for our rights. It’s only through a global system and a full SDG’s implementation that’ll be achieved results. To transform citizens into real agents for change we need training and organization. Is for that reason that we aim to deliver an advocacy framework that allows the participants to boost their confidence and manages their ideas/projects or goals to constitute and association at local level.

As well as encourage and help them ---at an initial level--- to start and active on line community for exchanging advocacy tools and experiences as a process of learning in itself in which they feel empowered and leaders of CHANGE.

Organizing Team

The team running Just Governance for Human Security is made up of a diverse group of volunteers from all over the world.

Shontaye Abegaz (USA)

Managing Director | Chair, Executive Committee | Twitter: @theglobalhand

Born and raised in the United States, Shon Abegaz has also lived in Europe, Africa and North America. She has been a devoted volunteer for various organizations since adolescence and her interests include: peace-building, intercultural dialogue, human security and good governance. Volunteer work began for Shon with Initiatives of Change in Washington, DC in 2004 where she was immediately struck by the inclusiveness and 'global thinking' by everyone she met. Shon was drawn to the focus on the human factor in global change as a unique aspect of Caux and believes it is impossible to tackle the topic of human security without focusing on the human factor. Shon's contribution to the Caux Conferences began in 2011 with the Human Security Forum. She has since grown with the Just Governance for Human Security forum beginning with its first year in 2013. Shon has held various roles within the forum and currently serves as its Managing Director.

Fiona Goggins (Australia)

Siddharth is a facilitator, coach, designer and traveler. He co-founded 'Paradigms Unlimited', a business leadership-consulting firm, in 2001, which is committed to working with people to create personal and organizational transformation. Siddharth is also a full time volunteer with 'Initiatives of Change'. He has served as a trustee and is a member of the Executive Committee of Initiatives of Change (India) and is involved with various activities of its training and conference centre, Asia Plateau in Panchgani, India and across the globe. He currently also serves as a member of the Asia Pacific Coordination Group. His personal vision is to see a world that works for everyone and not just a privileged few and hopes to use his life working towards this idea. He believes he is a student of life and nature, and that most of the important lessons lie in how nature works.

Sarah Haynes (United Kingdom)

Communications Team | Facebook: haynes.sl | LinkedIn: slhaynes

Sarah Haynes has been involved with a wide range of different projects within enterprise, education and the charity sector. She has a diverse range of experience in delivering training, project coordination, entrepreneurial development as well as ecumenical work. Sarah has a heart for cross-cultural engagement, reconciliation and spiritual formation. She is passionate about seeing a comprehensive cross-sector approach to peace-building and conflict transformation within which interpersonal dynamics are carefully considered and relational connectivity is fostered. She holds a degree in International Development (with a focus on internal displacement in protracted conflict) from the University of Leeds and has extensive international experience having lived, worked or studied across a number of continents including the Middle East, SE Asia and West Africa. Sarah is proud to be an alumna of the Caux Scholars Programme (Asia-Plateau, India) as well as a former participant of the first HumanSecurityX training programme. She is excited to be part of this year's team for Just Governance.

Charlotte Rémié (Switzerland)

Communications Team

Born and raised in Fribourg, Switzerland, Charlotte now lives in Geneva where she is currently doing a part-time apprenticeship as commerce employee (specialization in administration and service) and working at the International Committee of the Red Cross. She first came to Caux in 2016 through the Sponsored Programme, then in 2017 in the Caux Peace and Leadership Programme. Both are volunteering sessions and both times you could find her at the front desk. This specific experience directed her to an administrative app: to support causes that she believes in is her motto. She is coming back this year as a member of the volunteer team of the Just Governance Forum. Considering herself as an optimistic person, she is excited about new experiences, discovering new places/countries, reading books, trying new food and doing sports.

Born and raised in the rural English countryside not far outside of London, Josh is an ambitious and driven young individual who first attended Caux last year as a Peace & Leadership intern. With a BA degree in Geopolitics he returns this year to support the Just Governance team before moving to Amsterdam in September to begin a Master's degree in International Relations. Josh's background includes work with various NGOs, youth work and more recently volunteer work in Greece helping with the refugee crisis. Since the beginning of 2018 he has been based in Hanoi, Vietnam. Here he has continued his youth work through an NGO focusing on teaching entrepreneurship and language skills as a means of empowerment, alongside working full time as an English teacher across the city. Above all, Josh has a deep desire to help create meaningful change internationally and is inspired by being surrounded by other individuals with similar aspirations.
